

Basic Detail Report

00046223

Title

The Adelaide Steamship Company Limited luxurious twin screw motor liner MANUNDA

Date

before 1939

Primary Maker

Adelaide Steamship Company Limited

Medium

Paper

Dimensions

Overall (Unfolded): 365 x 504 x 1 mm

Name

Accommodation plan

History

Adelaide Steamship Company was a major Australian shipping company operating from 1876 until 1972 when it sold the last of its ships although it continued other commercial activities. MV MANUNDA and MV MANOORA were popular passenger ships on the Australian inter-state routes. MANUNDA served in Adelaide SS Co's fleet from 1929 to 1956. During World War II it was requisitioned as a hospital ship. It was broken up in 1957. MANOORA served in the coastal trade from 1935 until 1961, with the exception of the years 1939-1949, when it was requisitioned by the RAN and used for wartime and post-war purposes.